THE WIDE WORLD.

THIS DAY'S DESPATCHES

Burchard Declines to Resign.

Special to THE TIMES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29.—Following is the text of the letter of Mr. Burchard, declining to resign when requested to do so by Secretary Manning:

SIR—Respectfully acknowledging your request for my resignation, communicated to me on the 15th inst., I have the honor to state, that after careful consideration, I am not satisfied that duty or propriety require me at this time to resign my office. Were any malfeasance or misconduct alleged, or believed to exist, I am sure you would have done me the justice to have had an impartial examination, and given me a full opportunity of defence before demanding my resignation. Nor do I understand from you that the request is made for such reason; but it is because you deem the relations of my office to be so intimately connected with your administration of the treasury department that you should have the privilege of selecting the officer to be in charge of this bureau. Were this the case and the intention of the law, it might be proper and becoming for me to place the tenure of my service at your immediate command, or perhaps to have done so when you became head of the department. Permit me to say that such has not been my understanding of the purpose of the Coinage Act in providing that the director of the mint shall hold his office for the term of five years, unless sooner removed by the president upon reasons to be communicated by him to the Senate. The length of term of five years contains conditions upon which removal is authorized, and discussions and explanations preceding the passage of the act indicate the intent that the office of director of the mint should not be changed on account of change of administration, or in the head of the department, or for personal or political reasons. My predecessor, appointed by President Grant, although of opposite politics, continued in office under five successive secretaries of the treasury until his death. As to myself having served with acceptance for a full term, and upon reappointment and confirmation to part of another, I am conscious of no reason why an exception to the policy of the law should now be made, or why I ought not to continue in the performance of official duty until the expiration of my commission. Very respectfully, HORATIO C. BURCHARD.

Hon. Dan'l Manning.

Wholesale Hanging.

Special to THE TIMES.

GAINESVILLE, Texas, June 29.—Yesterday the lynching of five horse thieves was reported, in addition to a second report that fifteen had been hanged in two weeks. An effort to substantiate the last mentioned report resulted in positive proof of the hanging, a week ago, near Yalestown, of Frank Morgan, Bill Williams and a boy named Moore. Bill Williams, a farmer living near Mud creek, was suspected, and persons were detailed to watch him. When it was learned that Bill Williams had unlawfully taken possession of another man's horse, thirty-two determined men visited his house and arrested him. Williams bade his family an affectionate farewell and told them if he did not return in two days they might know he was dead. Williams was then led several miles away into some woods; where they were met by another party, having in charge Frank Morgan and the boy Moore. By a unanimous vote the men decided to hang Williams and Morgan. Some contended that by reason of the boy's youth it was best to turn him loose with moderate punishment, but it was finally decided, as there were great probabilities of his becoming a troublesome criminal that it was better he should die accordingly. All were strung up on one limb.

Around the World.

Special to THE TIMES.

NEWTON, Conn., June 29.—The new schooner Zocht Brunhildt, 119 tons, owned by J. Phelps, of Englewood, N. J., son of Wm. Walter Phelps, will sail from New London to-day for a trip around the world. Besides the owner five other gentlemen of the class of 1883, Yale college, will make the trip.

The Grain Market.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, June 29.—The Standard, in its official article this morning, says it is creditably informed as to the state of stocks of both wheat and flour throughout the kingdom, and that it will be as discouraging as can be to distressed American holders, since they promise to be much larger than was the case three months ago. There is also 500,000 quarters more of wheat on the passage to Great Britain than last year. Notwithstanding the absence of American sellers from the English market, they are in fact giving the rest of the world a splendid chance for supplying England at prices which though now are much better than if America had been in full competition

The Cuban Budget.

Special to THE TIMES.

MADRID, June 29.—Congress has voted the Cuban budget; expenses are estimated at $31,000,000 and revenue at $27,000,000. The bank of Spain will loan the difference. The budget includes a loan of $20,000,000, guaranteed by the Spanish treasury to reimburse bank of Spain and other foreign banks for loans to the Cuban treasury, and to cover a deficit of $11,000,000 in previous budget. The senate approved of raising $8,000,000 at a light percentage. Payment of loan not to be guaranteed by Spain; however, to build railways in Central Cuba. The Cuban treasury will guarantee interest on the loan.

A German Alliance.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, June 29.—The Berlin post, in articles supposed to be inspired by Bismarck, hints at a desire on the part of Germany for an alliance with England. The Novoe Vremya, of St. Petersburg, says that Russia ought to forget that Salisbury and Randolph Churchill always have been anxious for an Anglo-German alliance against Russia.

BIG BEAR'S PRISONERS.

Twenty-one Captives Released by the Wood Crees, and on Their Way to Fort Pitt.

FORT PITT, June 20, via Straubenzie, N. W. T., June 21.—S. L. Bedson, chief transport officer, brother-in-law of McLean, left here this morning with a Dougherty ambulance, one or two buckboards and a wagon load of provisions, on Middleton's trail to meet the prisoners. This evening a courier returned to Middleton from Bedson with dispatches dated 5 p. m., twenty miles from Pitt, and stating he had met Hodgson, one of Big Bear's prisoners, who told him twenty-one prisoners were on the way to Fort Pitt, destitute of provisions and badly off for clothing. It appears that the Wood Crees and Plain Crees separated yesterday as wired, Big Hunter, chief of the former, saying his braves could fight Big Bear's men, if necessary, without guns, but could not nor would not fight with white men. Big Bear and party went toward Turtle Lake, and in this direction, Hodgson says, the prisoners heard cannon firing day before yesterday. This is improbable; but if true, must have been from Otter, who to-day sent a courier, saying he has captured a party of Saiteau, not Crees, as reported yesterday, under Yellow Sky. Big Bear allowed Big Hunter and party with prisoners to go unmolested. Probably he was tired of them, and they started for Cold lake thirteen miles north of Beaver river, where Strange is camped. Big Hunter and people were glad to let the prisoners go, and gave them six ponies and an ox, with such provisions as they could possibly spare, unfortunately not much, the Cold lake caches being taken by Strange. Bedson's known energy leads to belief that he will push on and meet the prisoners to-night, and they are likely to be in here to-morrow. Boulton's and Dennis' mounted men, with Gatlings, arrived here to-night. Middleton's will be in from Frog lake to-morrow. Middleton's force, except volunteers, are likely to start home very soon.

Enormous Losses.

FORT PITT, Special Correspondence, June 22—The special of the Pioneer Press says: I asked Hayder Reed, assistant Indian commissioner at how great a sum he estimated the losses of the Hudson Bay company by the Indian and half-breed outbreak, and, after pondering a while he replied, "I can't even guess. They'll be terribly heavy." It is said that goods stored at Green Lake alone—the place is a depot for far northern posts—were worth $200,000 in Winnipeg. Frog Lake, Onion Lake, Battleford, Carlton, Duck Lake, scores of minor posts, were the locations of well stocked stores, now looted and the buildings burned. Horses are completely unpurchasable here now, and cattle are nearly as dear. This, remember, in a remote region where a few months ago equine and bovine property was plentiful. Individual losses will aggregate hundreds of thousands of dollars, and especially if the half-breed settlement and stores at Lac la Biche, seventy miles north of Victoria are destroyed as reported. A company of the Ninety-second has been sent to Lac la Biche to learn about the reported outbreak there, but as yet we have no news thence. I have frequently spoken of the great indirect loss failure to sow or plant throughout this fertile valley, as far up as Victoria, would occasion; and it will likely result into a sort of grasshopper plague problem to the dominion government. Whether the mounted police be reorganized into mounted infantry or not, the occupying force in the Northwest must necessarily be largely increased, and the increasement will cost a serious sum. The large expenditures will largely insure to the benefit of the Hudson Bay company, who furnish the supplies; and the settlers profit somewhat, in a connecting way, by the presence of the troops, since they sell off what substance they have left, and many of them can rent their teams for good rates of hire. The steamboat lines, which were not profitable last year, are making money since the government is using all the boats; and stockholders in the "Winnipeg and Western" and Galt lines may find solace in a direction this fall.

Prince Albert Victor Receives the Freedom of London.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, June 29.—Prince Albert Victor, son of the Prince of Wales, was to-day tendered the freedom of the city at Guildhall. The Prince and Princess of Wales, United States Minister Phelps and almost all of the ambassadors in London were present. The assemblage was a very brilliant one.

Many Millions of Treasure Seized.

Special to THE TIMES.

BOMBAY, June 29.—Reports from Cabul state that Isakahn, supported by Russian allies, has risen against Abdulah Khan. Isakahn marched upon Khamband and seized the treasure there valued at many million pounds sterling, belonging to the Ameer of Afghanistan. Political difficulties in Kaskigra consequently have become serious and reinforcement of troops are going northward.

Detained and Murdered.

Special to THE TIMES.

PARIS, June 29.—Rochefort says that Oliver Paine was murdered before the dispatch of the telegrams annulling the reward of one hundred pounds, which was said to be offered by the British Colonel for the head of Paine. Figaro says Paine never reached the camp of El Mahdi; that he was detained among the Bedouins, who finally killed him.

London Consols.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, June 29.—Consols closed at 99⅝.

Presbyterianism in British Columbia.

The following extract is from the report of the Home and Foreign Mission Committee of the Presbyterian Church in Canada presented at the late General Assembly: "The western section of the committee also met, and in addition to their resolution adopted at their last meeting to recommend to the General Assembly the organization of a presbytery in central India, where we have now five ordained missionaries, it was agreed to urge upon the Assembly the importance of undertaking mission work among thousands of heathen Chinese in British Columbia. This course has been urgently pressed upon the committee by our home missionaries recently sent to New Westminster and Victoria—men widely and well-known in our church, and it is to be hoped for the credit and good of our country, as well as for the honor and glory of our Master, that the church may see its way clear to engage in this work, already too long neglected by us. God invites us by our great success in Formosa to enter hopefully into this field also.

Since last assembly the following appointments have been made to British Columbia: The Rev. J. S. McKay, M. A., to New Westminster; Rev. D. Fraser, M. A., to Pandora street church, Victoria; Rev. T. G. Thomson to Vancouver City, (Burrard Inlet); and Rev. J. Chisholm to the Nicola Valley.

The total expenditure of the Presbyterian church in Canada, in the home and foreign mission field for last year was $1,811,755.

How the Queen Looks.

The queen, who looked, as I thought, extremely gracious, when Mrs. Astor and Mrs. White were introduced at the drawing room, says the London correspondent of the Chicago Herald, was the center figure in a setting of dazzling brilliance. Mixed with toilets inexpressibly gorgeous in hue, texture and ornamentation, white shoulders and rounded arms, were the varied uniforms of the men, in all the hues of the rainbow. The flashes of diamonds, the glitter of gold and jewels, the background of artistically draped and brightly colored walls, the gentle ripple of movement and the softly falling music dreamily echoing from distant corridors made up altogether a very satisfactory programme. The Queen, who is perfectly well aware that she looks her best in the shades of widowhood, wore black satin. From the regal coronet, which sparkled with hundreds of diamonds and pearls set in fine gold, flowed a majestic white tulle veil. The regal throat was encircled with a wondrous necklace of glorious pearls four rows deep, and in the tiny ears were diamonds emitting the purest rays. The royal person fairly blazed with ribands, stars and orders; and I am free to confess, impudent republican though I am, that Victoria presented a queenly and majestic figure, on which the eye dwelt with instinctive respect. She is the picture of a wholesome woman who feeds well, sleeps well, thinks well, and is favored with a sound mind and healthy body.

An Old Suit.

The Whatcom Reveille says that several years ago Mr. J. E. Murne, of Sem ahmoo, received a draft in payment from Mr. Rucker. The draft was cashed by Dexter, Horton & Co., bankers, Seattle, then forwarded to the east by them for payment. In the meantime the bank issuing the draft had "busted" and the paper was worthless. The draft was returned to Dexter, Horton & Co., who fell back upon Messrs. Murne and Rucker to refund the $800 they had paid out in cashing said draft. Of course Mr. Murne refused to pay the money out of his own pocket, and proceedings were begun by Seattle bankers to recover from him the amount of said draft and costs. For eight or ten years the case has been pending in court. Finally judgment was obtained against Mr. Murne, which had to be transferred to Victoria for collection. Accordingly Mr. Murne's property was advertised for sale in British Columbia to pay the judgment which by this time had piled up to the amount of $1700. Mr. Murne offered to compromise by paying the original amount, but the officers refused to accept. He then deposited $2200 in bank and proposes to take the case to Ottawa if necessary.

Afraid of His Doom.

A report from Regina states that Louis Riel has wired his friends in Quebec asking them to apply for his trial in the province of Quebec on the grounds that he would obtain more justice, besides saving much expense. He spends a great portion of his time writing to his family and counsel. Still looks dejected, but is reported to be hopeful as to the result of the trial. Extra precautions have been taken to prevent civilians from approaching within one hundred yards of the barracks, and policemen patrol the vicinity day and night. It is understood here that Mr. Richardson will have associated with him Mr. Dodd and Mr. Henry Fisher, Justices of the Peace. I am informed that Riel will be tried for treason under the English statutes of Edward III and amendments, for murder under the common law, or for treason-felony under 31 Vic., chap. 14, sections 2 and [illegible].

SPAIN, it is claimed, has "sounded" England in regard to the steps proper to be taken in order to protect the interests both of Spain and England against the intrigues of France in Morocco.

THE total debt of Cuba is $200,000,000. The budget for 1884-5 estimated the revenue at $29,500,000, and the expenditure at $32,070,000. There is a gloomy prospect for Cuban taxpayers.

EXTENSIVE forgeries of letters from RUSKIN have been made by malicious persons in London, and many of them have been printed. The forgers have imitated MR. RUSKIN'S forcible and peevish style sufficiently to deceive various editors.

"WHAT VICTOR HUGO did before all as a poet," says the Saturday Review, "was to rediscover the secret of crashing sound in French verse. Since the death of CORNEILLE, French poetry had rippled; VICTOR HUGO taught it once more the movement and the music of the wave."

"OBITER DICTA," the volume of anonymous essays by an English author recently noticed in these columns, has been again republished in American edition, this time by JOHN B. ALDEN, in the elongated side-pocket form he has invented. The essays are charming, and the book is attractive and cheap.

THE deposits in the Government Savings Banks during May amounted to $564,328, the withdrawals for the same month being $549,547. In the Postal Savings Banks the deposits last month were $492,214, and the withdrawals $534,412.

ON motion of SENATOR McINNES, a resolution has passed the Senate, that an humble address be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General; praying that His Excellency will cause to be laid before this House, copies of all correspondence or telegrams received from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the Legislature of British Columbia or any of their officials, addressed to the railway department or any member of the Privy Council, respecting the western terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Port Moody, Coal Harbor or English Bay.

A MEETING of the supporters of the government was held last week in Ottawa. It is probable that one object of the meeting was to discuss the propriety of paying the members for the additional time which the session may continue, over and above the regular time for which they are usually allowed $1,000, intended to cover 100 days at $10 per day. Upon this subject doubtless a good deal of discussion will arise when the vote comes to be passed, but if carried it will be quite otherwise when the same parties draw their compensation. Doubtless there will be a division upon it, and it will be a curious commentary if some one should next session move for the amounts drawn by the several members and see how few of the objectors left the additional money undrawn.

THE redistribution legislation which is not agreeable to the marquis of SALISBURY, does, indeed, largely favor the Liberals, for it provides increased representation in the large towns of the United Kingdom, and the political complexion of the large towns is decidedly Liberal. London, which now has twenty-two members, eight of whom are Tories, will, under the new arrangement, have fifty-nine members, and the probability is that not over ten of them will be Tories. Birmingham now has three members and will have seven, all of whom are likely to be Liberals; Glasgow will have the same increase, and Glasgow is Liberal; Manchester sends one Tory and two Liberals now, and she will have six members in the next Parliament, not more than two of whom, it is believed, will be Tories; Edinburgh's representation will be increased from two to four, all Liberals. Thus it will be seen from these few instances that the Liberals will greatly profit by the increased urban representation. As to the rural districts, there is, of course, doubt, as the Tories are masters of many single member districts.

ENGLAND'S NEW CHNCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER.

While in opposition none was more bitter in his denunciations of MR. CHILDERS and his budget policy, than SIR MICHAEL HICKS-BEACH. Now he has changed positions with the gentleman whom a few weeks since he so virulently assailed, and has a deficit of $74,660,000 to face, and it has to be made good. The Tories must either adopt the CHILDERS budget or effect a loan to cover the big deficit, and a new loan will doubtless be opposed by the Liberals. MR. GLADSTONE has certainly made no bargain with his opponents beyond promising that he will offer no factious opposition, which does not mean much after all. He will most likely let the Tories "stew in their own juice" and take the chances. It is difficult to see how HICKS-BEACH can get along without falling back on the CHILDERS proposition, perhaps somewhat modified. That proposition was to meet the deficit by the imposition of an additional 2d on the income tax, making it 8d to the pound; by equalizing the death duties on real and personal property; adding two shillings to a gallon to the duty on spirits, and one shilling a barrel to the duty on beer; making some minor changes in the stamp duties, home-brewing licenses and patent medicines and getting the remainder by the suspension of the sinking funds. The estimated revenue for 1885-6 was $425,700,000; but the war expenses were increased by the Egyptian affair and the mobilization on account of Penjdeh, so that the estimated expenses are $499,360,000. The money has to be provided, and the Tories cannot complain about the mobilization expenses, because they were constantly blaming MR. GLADSTONE for not going to war with Russia over the Penjdeh business.

LORD ROSEBERRY.

"Society in London," by a foreign resident, thus describes LORD ROSEBERRY: His alliance with the house of Rothschild by marriage placed at his disposal a fortune which, if not colossal—and in England all men, having anything, are popularly credited with three times as much as they have—is sufficient. He is young as age is now computed, and looks younger than he is. He has excellent health and a capital appetite. He is endowed with abilities which are not merely great, but of a kind which is exceptional in England, and yet which is peculiary acceptable to those amid whom his career is passed. At Eton, to which he was devoted, as at Oxford, he never displayed great proficiency in the studies of the place; but he had no sooner shaken the dust of school and college off his feet then he applied himself to the learning without which public men in England never make an enduring mark. When he was little more than five-and-twenty he had become sufficiently encyclopædic to deliver the opening address at that meeting of British savants known as the Social Science Association. But it is not study which has made LORD ROSEBURY what he is. He is by the happy gift of nature witty and singularly light in hand. He can instruct his hearers, but he never bores them. He never proses. His sense of fun is exceedingly quick and happy; but there is nothing uproarious in his merriment. It is indeed chastened even to the point of severity. The cause of laughter in others, he rarely laughs himself. His faculty of suppressing any emotion of fun makes his fun funnier. His drollery is the more irresistible because his droll things are said with a face of gravity and in tones almost solemn and austere. Then, too, though his stature is not great, it is dignified. He might, and occasionally does, venture to ennunciate sentiments, and even to crack jokes, which his company appreciates the better because of the calm and serious manner in which they are uttered.

MARRIAGE WITH A DECEASED WIFE'S SISTER.

The general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, at its recent session in Montreal discussed the question of marriage with a deceased wife's sister exhaustively. Last year the assembly forwarded three propositions to all presbyteries of the church, with the following result:

First—That the Mosaic law of incest is of permanent obligation, and that marriage ought not to be permitted within the degrees of consanguinity or affinity forbidden in the Word. To this proposition twenty-seven presbyteries assented, six expressed no opinion and five sent no returns.

Second—That a man may not marry any of his wife's kindred nearer in blood than he may of his own is, in the opinion of the committee, not sufficiently sustained by the authority of scripture. To this thirteen presbyteries assented, nine dissented, eleven expressed no opinion and five sent no returns

Third—That church discipline shall not be exercised in regard to marriage with a wife's sister, a wife's aunt or a wife's niece. To this twenty-eight presbyteries assented, six dissented, one expressed no opinion and five sent no returns.

After a long discussion it was decided, by a vote of 36 to 23, to refer the matter to the next assembly.

IN the Senate on the 19th inst., SENATOR McINNES gave notice of motion that he would move that an humble address be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General; praying that His Excellency will cause to be laid before this House, copies of all memorials, letters or telegrams, addressed to the Department of the Interior or any member of the Privy Council, respecting the land and timber regulations affecting Dominion lands in British Columbia.

IN the House of Commons on the 22nd inst., the contract made by the Postmaster General with the Allan Steamship Company, for the conveyance of transatlantic mail came up for ratification. The contract is for five years for $126,000 per year, or £500 sterling for each round trip. MR. BLAKE contended that better arrangements could have been made. The limit of time in this contract for each passage was thirteen or fourteen days, while from New York to Liverpool passage was made in six or seven days. There were other Canadian lines with steamers of greater speed, and, in fairness to these, tenders should have been asked for. Unless faster steamers were put on, passenger traffic would be diverted from the St. Lawrence altogether. SIR JOHN MACDONALD said the subsidy was necessary for the maintenance of the Allan line. The government would see to it that the company improved their steamers. MR. McMULLEN said that when in England he found that he could ship freight to Toronto via New York cheaper than by the Allan line. The contract was finally adopted.

PENDING the cabinet difficulties in England, the Russians have been quietly following their programme of bringing over the Afghan-Turkestan tribes to contentment with Russian domination. The boundary line to which the British government consented placed the czar's lieutenants exactly where they wanted to be to make a further bulge toward Herat. No people on earth possess the faculty which the Russians have for winning over wild tribes, and that their intention is to establish Russian influence in Northwestern Afghanistan cannot be doubted. That done, they will wait their opportunity to go further, for they are patient. In the meantime, it is not unlikely that LORD SALISBURY will have the whole irritating Central Asia boundary question to grapple with as soon as he is firmly seated in power.

Boston Transcript: It is stated that 350 French-Canadians have been imported to work in the mills at Hamilton, Mass. Canadian help is cheaper than protected American labor, consequently it is sought by manufacturers, who illustrate the truth of the saying that men will buy where they can buy cheapest. Congress passed a law at a recent session prohibiting the importation of cheap foreign labor to compete with native, thus demonstrating that the tariff is not sufficient to prevent the foreigner from coming in to take bread from the children of the soil. The French-Canadians are the most objectionable to our laboring classes of all competitors because so many of them return to their country carrying with them nearly all the money they have earned here.

CAVALIER JONES.

[Julia K. Wetherill in N. O. Times-Democrat.]

Vicksburg was then, as now, roosting precariously on the brow of its steep, ragged bluff; and it was in one of the rooms of the only hotel in the town could boast that the first act was played.

Cavalier Jones, one of the merry minstrelsy of the "cork opera," was filling the innocent, though not peaceful, office of nurse to Col. Legrand's daughter Clelie, aged 8. She was a pretty young lady, very much spoiled by her father, a ruined gentleman and a gambler. As she sat on the table, swinging her feet, the ribbon that tied her hair slipping on one side, her pinafore awry, and one little shoe untied, it was easy to guess that her mother was dead. Be that as it may, no sense of loss afflicted her at that moment, for Cavalier Jones had just been performing a clog-dance for her benefit.

"Do it again, Jones," she suggested, when he paused to take breath.

"Wait a bit, Missy," said Cavalier, wiping his forehead.

Minstrelsy was then in its infancy, and, like many another promising child, was most highly prized during the period of adolescence.

Cavalier was a boon to the company of which he was a member. His features seemed to have been tossed together by nature in a burlesque mood—a stray eye or nose, as it were from a rejected lot. His voice, which had a hopeless crack in it, was high and mournful in its tones, and the settled melancholy of his expression added point to those "black jokes for blue devils," which he had to deal. His head, already rather bald, was encircled by a nimbus of stubby hair; and he was so exceptionally tall and thin that he appeared, in the words of a professional friend skillful in perverting Shakespeare, "as if he had, upon the rack of this tough world, been stretched out longer."

In short, he was one of nature's most depressing practical jokes, the point of which he himself did not much appreciate.

"My papa'll be comin' soon," said Clelie, "an' he's goin' to bring me a lill jumpin' jack. He solemn promised he would—you ain't listenin' to me, Jones."

But oblivious, for once, to the voice of the tyrant, Cavalier was leaning out of the window, startled by the uproar that had suddenly sprung up in the street below.

"What's up?" he called out to a waiter on the doorstep.

"Why, they've got right out done with them gamblers, an' they're a-goin' to lanch 'em in de river, cards, faro boxes, bones, an' all, with nothin' but a inch plank apiece for a boat," the negro replied enjoying the excitement of the scene.

"What's out dere, Jones? Sumpin' funny?" and the fair little head was thrust under his arm.

"Run away, Missy," said Cavalier.

The door burst open, and Col. Legrand rushed in, his face as pale as death. "Here, Jones," he panted, thrusting a packet into the minstrel's hands, "keep this. Those devils are after me; but I won't be drowned like a dog. Clelie—be good to her, for God's sake. My darling!" and he snatched her up and kissed her. "Where's my lill jumpin' jack?" asked Clelie, thrusting her fingers into his pockets.

"Good-bye, Jones. I'll see you again soon."

He swung himself out of the back window and was gone. Cavalier ran to watch his progress, and Clelie followed at his heels.

Legrand was rapidly clearing the opening between the hotel and the woods at the rear of the town, when the report of a rifle struck the air.

He staggered and fell down dead.

"My God!" said Cavalier.

"Where's my papa gone to?" piped the little voice by his side—for the little head was not so high as the window sill.

"He never gave me my jumpin' jack, an' he solemn promised he would."

A poet might have lived and died in St. Anthony's alley, in the city of New Orleans. Died, most probably, if he had any weakness of the lungs; for it was damp as well as picturesque.

The house in question was low to the ground, with two or three sunken steps, and the windows were furnished with little balconies guarded by iron railings. That they had once been green was matter of history; that they were dusty was matter of fact.

It was in the latter part of March, and the mild air was full of the smell of pollen, and the grass sprang prosperously between the irregular stones of the pavement.

Outside of this house, with his chair tilted back against the wall, sat Cavalier Jones, in company with a younger man.

"I wonder where she's stopping so long?" said the latter.

"You're always in a hurry for things, ain't you? Don't you mind. She'll be along d'recly; but Missy ain't one that likes to be clucked after—you know that, Bones."

"Don't call me Bones," retorted the youth, with a jerk of his shoulders. Then he sprang to his feet, and looked down the length of the street.

He had a slender, agile figure; and the most noteworthy characteristic about his face was the tuft of hair that grew low in a point on his forehead, thence ruffling up into a curl. His eyebrows had a Mephistophelean inclination to turn up at the corners, and his mouth was like that of a pretty and petulant child.

This was Bill—or William, as he preferred to be called—Calvert, the bones of the minstrel troupe of which Cavalier was the end-man.

He was a tragedian manque, and while his fingers rattled the bones they yearned to clutch Hamlet's dagger.

These bones, in fact, were the skeletons in his closet.

"Ah! here she comes," he said, a change passing over his restless, attractive face; "but there's some one with her," he added.

The person of whom he spoke was a tall and slender girl. She was one of nature's most charming inconsistencies—a blonde Creole. Her eyes were of a peculiar, dusky blue, and the fair hair that clustered around her forehead was touched here and there with a sultry gold. The color in her cheeks was deep and rich; so that she produced, more than most blondes, an impression of warmth and fervor.

The man who walked beside her was young, handsome and a gentleman, one of those bright, far off beings whom, heretofore, she had contemplated from a distance.

"I thank you very much," she was saying; "you have been so kind."

"The obligation, the honor is on my side," he replied, with a splendid bow. Then he left her.

"Well, Missy?" said Cavalier, interrogatively, when she came within speaking distance.

"Oh, father!—you can't think," she cried. "I was walking past the St. Louis hotel, not looking at any one, and a horrid little man called out what a pretty girl I was. I hurried on as fast as I could, but he followed me, and then that—that gentleman made him leave me, and said he would walk home with me. His name is Mark Reynolds, father."

"That was right kind, Missy," said Cavalier. "I wish the young man'd stayed to let me thank him."

"Why wasn't I there?" muttered Bill. Then he added in a hesitating voice, as if fearful of intruding his personality on her, "Good evening, Miss Clelie."

"Oh, Bill, good evening. I didn't see you before."

She moved toward the steps, and Cavalier said, "Won't you sit out here a bit, Missy?"

"I am so tired father," she answered, gently.

Silence followed her departure. Bill was making emphatic periods in the mold with his cane. Presently he looked up. "It's no use," he said.

"There's a heap of things that ain't any use, Bill," said Cavalier, out of the depths of his past.

His life had been singularly devoid of love. In his childhood he had been used to slink into corners to escape observation that was never approving. He bore the jests of his young companions in a silence that seemed stolid, but which, like internal bleeding, was more dangerous than loud outcries.

By the time he had reached manhood every spark of joy had been quenched in him.

At length he met and was married by a moderately pretty and immoderately vain young woman who was desperately poor, and endured the man for the sake of the little money he had earned. He could scarcely believe himself beloved by such a charming creature; but she impressed the fact upon him, and he was very happy.

He was so simple that it would have been opportunity thrown away not to have deceived him, and Antoinette was not a woman to neglect her duty. She squandered his earnings, involved him in debt, and ran away with another man.

After such an unloved youth judge how hungrily his heart had closed around the little child who had been left to his care. His ugliness made no difference to her—she would lay her soft cheek to his as tenderly as if his face had been beautiful.

He watched her as she slept with a secret and yearning fear that she might be taken from him. His fingers attained a clumsy facility in tying shoes and buttoning frocks. She called him "Father," and the recollection that she had ever known another parent soon faded from her mind.

As she grew older, he spared no pains in having her educated—according to the educational ideas of those days—and she bore herself, among his professional associates, with a little air of reticence, defensive, but never offensive.

Rather silent, but not sad, she felt no isolation in her lot. She liked to sit behind her white curtains, and watch the world, with her book or work upon her knee, and without other care than to listen for her father's hesitating footfall on the stones.

But that simple life was ended now. On one showery spring day Mark Reynolds appeared in St. Anthony's alley. Clelie was standing in the doorway knitting, with her fair head leaning against the framework. Her ball had bounced out of her hands and she was trying to coax it toward her with cunning jerks of the yarn. She looked up.

"An unpleasant day?" he remarked, uncovering to the rain his bright chestnut curls. These curls, short and silken, were what one first observed in him.

"Oh, yes! Won't you come in?" said Clelie, simply.

He entered with a smile.

The room was small and commonplace, for that was the age when a woman's idea of the house beautiful was a building adorned with wax flowers, bead baskets and works of supererogation in cross-stitch.

On the mantelpiece stood two cheap, empty vases, with flaring mouths that seemed to be gaping like hungry swallows, and a wild, red pattern gambolled over the wall-paper, evolved by some designer of chaotic brain. A more complete culture feels something like envy of the robust generation that could live unblighted by such surroundings. It was in the natural sequence of events that Mark should have come. Clelie was not surprised; but she remained silent as she pondered over some subject of conversation choice enough to offer her distinguished visitor.

This young man, without intending it, always made a false impression upon new acquaintances, by seeming to be so much more than he really was. But this was the fault of his face, and partly, also, because he was capable of looking such unutterable things. His sufficiently kind and candid nature did not warrant the depth of his eyes.

Meanwhile Clelie was still cajoling the truant ball to her side; and, observing this, the young man went down on his knees to restore it. While in this position, it occurred to him to ask her if she liked knitting.

"Quite well," said she, sedately. "It is better than to have idle hands."

"In that case I had better learn to knit," said Mark; "for my hands are very often idle. You might teach me."

"But perhaps you could not learn all about it in one lesson—rounding the heel and everything."

This gave him an opportunity to remark: "Then I might come again."

Clelie glanced up, resolved to look severely at him; but her purpose broke into a glimmering smile.

Mark found it very sweet to sit in this poor little room, with the spring rain making exclamation points upon the pane, and opposite him a pair of eyes that had the blue of a winter dusk.

What they said to each other was not very wise; but it sufficed—and what more can one demand of an interview?

He was annoyed when Cavalier and Bill presently intruded themselves.

"Father, this is Mr. Reynolds," said Clelie.

"I am very happy to meet you, Mr.—ah—"

"Jones—thank you, sir," said Cavalier, in a low voice.

"And this is Mr. Calvert," added Clelie, indicating Bill.

The minstrel boy folded his arms and returned Mark's salutation as slightly as possible.

The sparkling little stream of conversation had run dry, and Mark soon took his departure.

"Missy!" said Cavalier, gently, as she stood at the door.

She did not realize at first that she had been called, and then she turned, with a start.

"Is supper 'most ready, do you reckon, honey?" he asked. "Bill and me have to be on hand prompt to-night."

"Of course!" cried Clelie, alertly. "I don't know what I am thinking about."

When she left the room Cavalier's head sunk on his breast.

Mark returned, and continued to return. He made it rather impressive that these visits were largely the result of accident. He tried the experiment of staying away, but it did not agree with him, and he abandoned the idea as pernicious.

This filled Cavalier with bitterness. "Is he ashamed of comin' to see my girl?" he wondered. "Like enough he thinks she isn't enough of a lady for him." An inner voice added, "Ah! but he doesn't know."

"There ain't any call for him to know," said Cavalier, turning upon this monitor. "If he's mean as that let him go. She's mine. Haven't I cared for her, and nursed her, and brought her up from a little child?"

"Why don't you tell that fellow to keep away?" asked Bill, who had become a sullen shadow in the house.

"I reckon Missy wouldn't like that, Bill."

"Has it come to that, then?" cried the other.

"Well, you see," reasoned Cavalier, "if there's any sendin' of a young man away, a girl gen'rally likes to do it herself. No, Bill, things have got to stagger along the best they can."

But in spite of this outward calm he watched, with a sickening dread, for the signs of unhappiness on Clelie's face. Alas! she was too happy.

At length, one day, Cavalier said: "The season's over, Missy, and I reckon we'll leave here for a bit."

"Oh, no, father!" cried Clelie, involuntarily.

"Why, you see," he said slowly, "the country air'll do you good."

"Oh, if that's all! why, father, I am perfectly well."

—The contract for the new hotel on Government street, has been awarded to Kempster Bros.

—When you require an express wagon, telephone to THE TIMES' office for the Victoria Dispatch Company.

—Mr. James Gray, of the Pritchard House, left by the Olympian to-day for Seattle, to attend the races on the 4th. He took a "goer" with him.

—An Indian maiden, when intoxicated, fell over the Millstream river bridge, at Nanaimo, and was rescued by Constable Booth.

—The Tacoma News copies our remarks on Judge Crease's conduct in censuring the press, and says that "Victoria has another Judge Greene."

—We are glad to see Mr. F.C. Marshall on the street again. His recent illness has reduced his avoirdupois considerably, but his recuperation will be rapid.

—Mr. M. Humber lost a fine horse yesterday. When in the pasture it was kicked by another horse and its leg broken. It was then shot.

—Yesterday was coronation day. On the 28th of June, 1838, forty-seven years ago, Victoria was crowned Queen of Great Britain and Ireland.

—The walls of the New Westminster gaol have been built up to the second story, and the contractor is waiting for more brick.

—George Earle, of Tacoma, is en route to Victoria, having left on Monday in his small yacht, intending to sail all the way.

—The side tracks have all been laid and ballasted, and the rip-rap along the bay has been completed this week at Port Moody.

—An interesting game of cricket was played at Beacon Hill on Saturday between elevens from the Cathedral Institute and Victoria. One innings was played, the former scoring 82 and the latter 65.

A connection will be made with the Northwest American systems on the border, and the possibility of the escape of horse thieves prevented.

—The 29th of June is the anniversary of the death of Henry Clay, after Washington, Jefferson and Jackson one of the most popular statesmen of America. He was several times a candidate for the Presidency, and in 1844 was defeated by Mr. Polk, who was elected by the party in favor of going to war with England rather than give up the claim to Oregon. The party motto was "Fifty-four forty or fight," but after the election the party accepted a compromise.

—A reporter of the Winnipeg Sun visited the St. John Cathedral cemetery last week. In describing the last resting place of Winnipeg's brave heroes he says, next to Lieut. Swinford lies the remains of poor Allie Ferguson, and resting on the stick which bears the young soldier's name is a wreath placed there by the request of Mrs. A. W. Ross, of Victoria, B. B. Next in order is the grave of Corporal Code, with that of Richard Hardisty beside it and Fraser's last. Sufficient room has been left for the bodies of the Winnipeg soldiers buried on the battle field, and when all our noble dead rest side by side surely some effort will be made to better mark the spot.

MARINE NOTES.

The ships Harvester and Helicon have been chartered to load V. C. Co's coal.

Two large full rigged ships passed up this morning under full sail.

Departure Bay is at present bare of shipping—quite an unusual occurrence.

The ship Valley Forge, Capt. Love, from Panama, arrived in Royal Roads on Saturday for orders.

The ship Nagpore, Hull, England, with a cargo of rails for the Island railway, arrived at Esquimalt yesterday morning.

QUEENSTOWN, June 29.—Arrived—Steamer British Empire from New York, for Liverpool.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Arrived—Steamer Australia, from Hamburg, and Etruria from Liverpool.

The first ship to discharge at the new Nanaimo & Esquimalt railway wharf will be the Nagpore, which arrived yesterday morning. She begins unloading at once.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—[Special.]—Sailed, the Wilmington for Victoria; bark Terris S. Thompson for Nanaimo. Arrived, steamer Empire, Departure Bay.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. George Steinberger, school teacher at Wellington, is in this city, where he intends spending his holidays.

The general condition of the Northwest wheat crop may be said to be favorable, though in some localities there is still complaint of a superabundance of rain. This trouble, however, does not seem to be wide-spread, and with good weather during the coming week there will be little to fear.

FROM THE NORTH.

Arrival of the Boscowitz—All Quiet in the Mines.

The steamer Barbara Boscowitz, Capt. S. Williams, arrived from Fort Simpson and way ports at 2 p. m. with the following passengers: Mrs Dr Praeger, J Blampied, A J Dallain, P Manson, H Wilkinson, J Clayton, J Wiley, M Cunningham, H Bear, J Stewardson, J Sempere, J Harper, J Yarnton, J Bendroth, special constable, with one Indian prisoner from Aberdeen, J Moore, Esq., from Quatsino, Geo Nault, H Goodfellow and 16 Indians. Her freight consisted of 600 cans of oil from Skidegate, 7600 feet of lumber from Rivers Inlet and about 20 tons of miscellaneous cargo.

The news from the Lorne creek mines is not of a stirring nature. Miners having been prevented from getting their flumes and wingdams in place, on account of a second freshet, brought on by hot weather which was 85 and 90 degrees in the shade. The only gold producing claim in the creek at present is what is known as D. French's. It was expected, however, that on Monday last claim owners would begin to put in flumes, &c., and get to work taking out the precious metal.

Lorne Creek inhabitants are to have plenty of fresh beef, as Mr. Sterritt was at the Forks of Skeena with forty head of cattle, and was expected to arrive in the mines in a few days.

Mr. George Kenny has been supplying the miners with goods, but will leave for Omineca as soon as the Hudson Bay Company's stock arrives, which was close at hand. Their store will be under the charge of Mr. Charles Clifford.

Mr. Michael Hart, of Rivers Inlet, having received word on the 10th inst., that Peter McCrea, who was left in charge of the Quassilas Canning Co.'s property on Smith's Inlet, was dead, and had been so for a long time, left on the following morning in a canoe with two Indians, to investigate. They had a long and dangerous journey. McCrea was found dead in the house, and life was probably extinct sixteen days. The Indians became completely paralyzed, and refused to go inside or assist Mr. Hart in any way. Procuring lumber, a coffin was made, and the body of the dead man was interred at a place selected by the Quassilas chief. The indications were that he had died without a struggle and suddenly.

An Indian prisoner was brought down by J. Bendroth, charged with robbing Dempster's store at Aberdeen.

The Inverness Cannery will finish work on Wednesday next.

Some of the miners who went to Lorne creek went out prospecting while a few returned to this city by the Boscowitz.

Mr. Vrooman's Farewell Sermon.

On Sunday evening the large hall occupied by the Chinese mission, on Cormorant street, was crowded almost to suffocation the occasion being a farewell sermon by Mr. J. E. Vrooman, who for the past six months has gratuitously devoted his leisure hours to the evangelization of the Chinese. The service was conducted in Cantonese, and although we could not understand a word of it, yet to judge from the fluency and enthusiasm of the speaker, the close attention and eagerness depicted on the upturned faces the sermon must have been a most impressive one. At the conclusion of the service Mr. Vrooman shook hands with and gave passages of Scripture, printed both in the literary and colloquial form, to each of the large audience. Mr. Vrooman left to-day by the Queen of the Pacific for his home in San Francisco, and his departure will be regretted not only by the Chinese population, but also by very many of our citizens, who either in the transaction of business or the social circle, have had the good fortune to make the acquaintance of so estimable a person.

The Kootenay Company.

The Kootenay Syndicate, Limited, is registered in London with a capital of £10,000 in shares of £1, to adopt a preliminary agreement contained in a letter dated 25th July, 1884, from W. A. Baillie Groham to the Hon. the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works, Victoria, British Columbia, and adopt any subsequent agreement. The company also proposes to acquire lands in British Columbia, or elsewhere in Canada or the United States, to redeem and irrigate the same, to erect saw and flour mills, and engage in lumbering, and to undertake by steamers, boats, rafts, canoes, etc., the navigation of the Kootenay river and lakes, and of the upper Columbia river. The subscribers all live in London, and Mr. W. A. Baillie Groham is appointed managing director.

The Vice-Presidency of the C. P. R.

At the recent election of directors of the C. P. R. company, which took place at Montreal, Mr. Stephen was elected president and Mr. W. C. Van Horne first vice-president and general manager. Mr. R. B. Angus for several years occupied that responsible position, but at his special request he was allowed to withdraw. However, he is still a director and a member of the executive board. It is understood to be Mr. Angus' intention to spend a few years in Europe for the purpose of educating his family.

Nanaimo Workmen.

At the regular meeting of Nanaimo Lodge, No. 53, held on Thursday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: P. M. W., J. H. Westfeldt; M. W., W. L. Jeffery; Foreman, W. M. Hilbert; Overseer, W. Bone; Recorder, M. Manson; Financier, W. Keddy; Receiver, M. Wolfe; Guide, J. Lyons; Inside watchman, R. Pollock; Outside watchman, W. Raybould; Organist, D. Jones; Medical examiner, Dr. Cluness.

Cowichan School.

The examination of the school was held on Friday last, in presence of the trustees and a number of visitors, who expressed satisfaction at the proficiency shown. The roll of honor was awarded to Isabella B Blyth, for general proficiency; Maggie A Blyth, for punctuality and regularity; Susan A Ryan, for deportment. The children after the conclusion of the examinations were treated to a picnic which was heartily enjoyed.

Gone to San Francisco.

The Queen of the Pacific which left today for San Francisco, carried the following passengers: Mrs. Tillman, Mrs. J. H. Barry, Mrs. Fried, Newton McElroy, Miss Tillman, Mrs. Annie Griffin, J. Magee John, E. Vrooman, J. J. Daley, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fredrick and children, Jacob Caher, Mrs. J. B. Taylor.

The Variety Theater.

Mr. J. M. Cross left this morning for San Francisco by the Sound, for the purpose of selecting a stock company for the new variety theater, which is now about completed, next to the Philharmonic hall, on Fort street. Mr. Cross' intention is to present to Victorians such attractions as none can take exception to.

Bailed out.

The young man Elliott, committed for trial on a charge of stealing, was to-day admitted to bail, himself in $500 and two sureties of $250 each.

The Chinese Restriction Act.

In the Supreme Court this morning, Mr. Drake applied for the writ of certiorari to issue forthwith, and it was so ordered. The case was then adjourned.

POLICE COURT.

(Before Edwin Johnson, Esq., S. M.)

Robt. Stenhouse, Jerry Robinson, Mary and Amelia, Indians, were fined $5, or one week each, for drunkenness. W. Grant was charged by W. K. Bull, tax collector, with transacting a wholesale business without a license. The case was adjourned till to-morrow to allow of witnesses being called.

Ah Foo, charged with supplying liquor to an Indian named Charles Wilson, was fined $50 or three months' imprisonment.

Daniel Sullivan got on a big jamboree on Saturday, and while under the influence of the ardent, threatened to shoot Alfred Stronach. He was arrested by officer Grant, and while being conveyed to to gaol used very abusive language, threatening to get even when released from gaol. When arrested, no cartridges were found in the possession of the prisoner. Under the circumstances the magistrate imposed the smallest penalty which the law allowed, a fine of $50 or two months imprisonment and the confiscation of the revolver.

A Cowichan Indian for assaulting a Fort Rupert Indian, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment. An Indian for assaulting Officer Grant while in the discharge of his duty, was fined $50 or three months' imprisonment.

A Social Event.

An interesting event which has been on the tapis for some weeks past is to be consummated at the residence of Robert Dunsmuir, Esq., M. P. P., James Bay, on Wednesday evening, the contracting parties to the ceremony being Mr. Henry Croft (of the well known firm of Messrs. Croft & Angus, Chemainus) and Miss Dunsmuir. It is understood that after the ceremony there will be a reception held at the residence of the bride's father. During the evening the happy couple will take their departure for Tacoma, and other southern points, where they will spend their honeymoon. One of the splendid steamers belonging to Mr. Dunsmuir, has been specially fitted up to convey the party to Tacoma, where apartments have been secured for their accommodation at the "Tacoma" hotel. After resting there for a day, the happy couple and their party will be brought in a special car provided for their use by the Northern Pacific railroad company to Portland. The party will arrive there on the 3d, and on the night of the 4th they will leave for San Francisco by the ocean steamer. After passing a short time in San Francisco they will visit southern California ere returning to this city. THE TIMES hopes that nothing but the brightest sunshine will be theirs during their journey through life.

Lands not Utilized.

In passing along the Saanich road one is struck with the large quantity of land still unclaimed which appears to the traveler to be just as good for agricultural purposes as many of the fields under crop; and yet it is often said that we have but little land on the island fit for cultivation. It is true that in many instances it would require much labor to make it ready for the plow, but the farmers in many parts of this continent have had the same wild nature to contend with. With the assistance of a small axe and a yoke of oxen it is astonishing what has been accomplished in making the forests "blossom as the rose." Our British Columbia farmers ought to be second to none in point of energy, as in these new countries the most energetic of the human family are generally to be met. The time is surely not far distant when we may expect to see many new homes in the rural districts of our healthful island.

A Poor Unfortunate.

A white woman, with two children, aged about eight and three years, was found loitering about the wharf at the foot of Johnson street. The unfortunate creature was apparently partially out of her mind, and could not give a very coherent account of herself. The clothing of herself and children were in a terribly dilapidated condition. The woman said that she had walked from Nanaimo, and this statement is partially borne out by a gentleman in the city who saw the three out in the country some distance a day or two ago. A charitable gentleman on Wharf street taking compassion on the woman's pitiable condition, gave her six dollars, but she would not keep the money and returned it. When first seen the little children were picking up refuse on the street and eating it. They were given over to the police, who will temporarily provide for them.

A Clever Speech.

Mr. A. W. Ross is reported to have made a remarkable and exceedingly able speech in the Commons on the C. P. R. resolutions, in dealing with the conditions of settlement in Manitoba and the Northwest and with the traffic prospects of the Canadian Pacific railway. No more important contribution has been made to the public information on this subject. He admitted changing his mind, and now favors the road around Lake Superior and through the mountains. He thought that the rapid construction was an immense advantage to the Northwest. His residence in British Columbia has probably changed his opinions of the present unfortunate condition of the Northwest. He attributed it, among other things, to the action of the farmers' meetings, led by demagogues, for the basest of political purposes—that of vilifying their country.

The C. P. R. Extension.

After THE TIMES had gone to press on Saturday afternoon a dispatch was received from New Westminster intimating that J. A. R. Homer had telegraphed Mayor Dickenson that in an interview between himself and Mr. Van Horne that that gentleman had assured him that the engineers would be put on the extension of the C. P. R., inside of five weeks, and construction thereon then proceed with immediately and the rails laid to the terminus in September. As the above was printed only in part of Saturday's edition, we repeat the announcement.

Nanaimo Odd Fellows.

The officers elected for Black Diamond Lodge No. 5, are: H. McAdie, Noble Grand; T. Harris, Vice Grand; James Crossen, Secretary; J. E. Jenkins, Treasurer; G. Norris, E. Quennell and J. Ganner, Trustees.

"The Times'" Telephone.

A telephone connection has been established between THE TIMES' office and all parts of the city and Esquimalt; the number of our call being "45," which number the public will please remember when wishing to communicate with this office.

Riel's Trial.

A special from Ottawa states that Deputy Minister of Justice Burridge, left that city on the 22nd for Regina with copies of Riel's correspondence in connection with the rebellion. He will proceed to hold preliminary examinations. Riel's counsel have failed in their attempt to change venue to Lower Canada.

Recognizing their Services.

United States Consul Stevens has been notified by the United States government that medals are in course of preparation to be presented to the Indians for their brave and humane conduct in saving from watery graves seamen connected with several wrecks that have taken place on this coast.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

[While the columns of THE TIMES are open for the discussion of questions of public interest, to correspondents, it must be understood that it does not necessarily endorse, nor coincide with, the sentiments expressed by writers in this column.]

The Twelfth Player.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR—Being an eye witness to that manly old English game, cricket, last Saturday on Beacon Hill, I noticed one side had eleven fielders, and the other side played eleven also, with the assistance of a very fine black curly dog, with a large silver collar on. I think with a little more practice he will make a good player. I asked one or two parties if they knew to whom the dog belonged, and I was told it was the property of the Colonist Hotel.

AN OBSERVER.

Chinese not Wanted.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—In your issue of the 26th inst., there is a letter from Soda Creek, signed "T. M.," headed "Chinamen wanted in the Upper Country." The very facts stated therein ought to condemn Chinese emigration. It exposes a very deplorable state of things in that upper country. It is now over twenty years since white men commenced farming in that vast region, yet take any area of one hundred miles square and you can nearly count the whole number of white women it contains on one set of fingers. It is needless to say that the morality of that district is of the kind that allows any white man to consort with a squaw without reproach at home, and as klootchmen will not work much, and white men do not like to cook or wash, while the miners and customs prevent their inviting decent white women to settle amongst them, hence the necessity of Chinamen to do the work. Thus, at present the Chinamen have such a hold on the country that the chance of raising the standard of morality by the influx of white women is very remote, if at all possible. Now sir, is not this a deplorable state of affairs. The same evil prevails to a greater or less extent all over the country, even in Victoria. The thousands of respectable white girls in the east who are now struggling for existence, are not required because every place and occupation they could fill with honor and credit to the country is now filled with the degraded heathen Chinese. This is the greatest evil of Chinese immigration into British Columbia and quite sufficient reason why it should be stopped in the opinion of an OLD BRITISH COLUMBIAN.

BARKERVILLE JOTTINGS.

Hydraulic Mining—Election of School Trustees—General News.

Hydraulic claims are in full blast. That old reliable, the Black Jack, is giving very favorable prospects. We hope the shareholders, Messrs. Hagaman, Hauser, Brown and Polson, may have a big clean-up; this their pluck and perseverance deserves. Those familiar with the environments of Barkerville are aware that the canyon above town and the elbow in Williams Creek were caused by a huge mountain slide, in the ages, entirely obliterating the ancient bed of the creek. Some weeks ago an old "sixty-oner" returned convinced that that the present was not the original channel, and big with the expectation of discovering new and rich diggings. Imagine his surprise on finding that he had been anticipated about twenty years, and that the Black Jack had already disgorged its thousands of ounces.

ELECTION OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

Universal interest was manifested here in the school election of trustees to fill two vacancies on the board caused by the resignation of Dr. H. Watt, and the expiration of the term of office of William Stone, late Secretary. Of several candidates, Messrs. Hagaman and Hauser were duly elected. We believe the election of these gentlemen gives general satisfaction, and will do much to foster the interest of education in the district. We trust their ways may be more even and smooth than the by-paths of their predecessors, who by an unappreciative public have been oft driven to chant the refrain: "A school trustee's life is not a happy one—happy one."

MISCELLANEOUS.

Our esteemed townsman, Mr. Wm. L. Jones, who has suffered much from an acute form of neuralgia during the past few weeks, has gone to Quesnellesmouth for change of air and rest. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery and an early return to Barkerville.

Mr. Daly, of the firm of Mason & Daly, has just arrived from Victoria.

The election of directors for the Royal Cariboo Hospital takes place Saturday, the 20th inst. A lively time is anticipated, as there are those who consider that this august body have not been entirely guiltless of "ways that are dark."

A new and beautiful design in architecture is the $300 cob-web stretching over William's Creek, from the southwest corner of the Aurora dump.

Mining in Alaska.

A half interest in one of the Juneau quartz ledges was sold a short time since for $10,000, and will be worked energetically at once.

Capt. Carroll, the popular and courteous commander of the Idaho, has also disposed of his interest in one of the rich quartz ledges, but his innate modesty prevents him telling a reporter how much he got for it. We hope it was a good round figure, for he richly deserves success.

The quartz ledge owners have taken out an injunction to prevent the placer miners from working on their ledges.

The fishing season has been a dull one, and there is no news from the outside mines.

Brought Back Again.

A young man named James Hudson, of Salt Spring island, was brought to the city on Saturday on the Bithet and conveyed on a stretcher to St. Joseph's Hospital. Some six weeks ago he left one of the city hospitals, where he had been for some time undergoing treatment for a sprained knee, and returned home. His knee has continued to grow worse, and has swelled to an enormous size. The bone is supposed to be affected and it may be found necessary to amputate the diseased limb to save the young man's life. About three weeks ago Hudson left his father's place and went to the house of James McFadden, a neighbor, through whose efforts he has been brought to the city again for treatment. He was compelled to leave the hospital before because of his inability to pay his fees. Upon his return home his father ordered him to work, saying that he was well able to do so. Then he left the house and stopped with a neighbor about three weeks, until at length the appearance of his leg became so alarming that he was again removed to the city.

Another Departure.

H. O. J. Irwin, clerk in Strouss & Co.'s Wharf street, who had been on a business visit to Nanaimo, left on Friday by the Queen of the Pacific for parts unknown. It is understood that there are a number of merchants and others who will have cause to regret his somewhat hurried departure. It is not known as yet whether he is a defaulter to his employers or not.

PLUCKY GIRLS.

Twenty-one of Big Bear's Indians Reach Fort Pitt.

A Fort Pitt special of the 21st, says that at 6 a. m., on that day twenty-one prisoners came into camp on transportation sent out to meet them under the charge of Bedson. The wagons came up to the prisoners encamped at Loon Lake, sixty miles from here. Clothing had been taken to Providence for the wants of the prisoners. They were delighted to see their friends, but were not at all in doleful case. Every one was strong and hearty, the McLean girls particularly. Miss Emelia, the eldest, is plucky enough for a life guardsman. When the captives arrived here, though so early, a number of hearty cheers were given by those about the steamer landing. All were put on board the steamer Marquis and soon after breakfast adults and children alike were ready for eager interviewers. Not one of them had been subjected to bodily injury or ill treatment of any sort, but after the fight with Stange had to walk and pack the grub. Miss Emelia says she would not have believed the endurance all manifested possible, but now that captivity is over they look back at it almost with enjoyment. She was about the only one in danger, as she says "I could not help telling the plain Crees that I despised them." After each skirmish the plain Crees would threaten their lives, but the Wood Crees were always faithful. At Steele's fight four were killed and one wounded. If a couple of shells more had been fired by Strange they think the Indians would have surrendered. The Saddle Lake Indians were really the saviours of the party. McLean has given a letter to the Wood Crees and asked the military authorities to give them a chance to surrender before firing.

Avoid by all means the use of calomel for bilious complaints. Ayer's Cathartic Pills compounded entirely of vegetable ingredients, have been tested for forty years, and are acknowledged to be the best remedy ever devised for torpidity of the liver, costiveness, and all derangements of the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla operates radically upon and through the blood, and is a safe, reliable, and absolute cure for the various diseases, complaints, and disorders, due to debility, or to any constitutional taint or infection.
